HELGOLAND OF THE ADRIATIC
Island of Cherso Has Become Point of Importance on the New Map of Europe.

The Versailles conference set Americans searching the gazetteers for Yap; the San Remo conference turns the spotlight to another obscure island—Cherso.

"Practically unheard of on this side of the Atlantic, eluding most travelers, even escaping many of the seekers after the little-known places of Europe. Cherso neither is inaccessible nor unattractive," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society. "It dangles like a pendant in the Gulf of Quarnero, low hung from the neck of Fiume. It is the Long Island of that port, its shore line rising 12 miles to the south of D'Annunzio's present stronghold. Its slender form extends to the southwest for 40 miles, though it never exceeds seven miles in width, and its area is somewhat more than twice that of the District of Columbia.

"Holding in mind this location, near the head of the Adriatic, in view of the tentative plans to make Fiume a buffer state between Italy and Jugoslavia, the strategic possibilities of Cherso become apparent. Indeed, one may picture it as a potential Helgoland of the Adriatic.

"Cherso lies off the shores of the northern part of Dalmatia and the Croatian littoral, a region formerly known as Morlachia. The Morlachia channel preserves this name, originating with the Slavic invaders of Dalmatia, who 'called the Latinized people they found there Vlach, or Mavro-Vlach—black Vlach.' Thus the Slavs of this region have come to be known, 'by a corruption of this title, as Morlachia.

"In rural districts Morlachian women retain their historic costume, which includes a kerchief for the head, many strands of beads, a waist band from which hang amulets and various trinkets, and, over a blue cloth gown, an apron of exquisite embroidered pattern. About her neck an unmarred girl wears a string of coins and rings which comprise her dowry. Formerly the men wore their hair in a plait, which their wives were expected to comb, adorn with ribbons and charms, and anoint with fats."

Massasoit Statue.

It is thought that the bronze statue of Massasoit which is to be presented to the town of Plymouth by the national organization of the Improved Order of Red Men will be located on Watson's hill instead of Cole's hill, where some of the Pilgrims lie who died during the first winter after their arrival at Plymouth. This latter place is considered more appropriate than Cole's hill, as it was resorted to by Indians and they not only lived there, but had feasts, as remains have shown, while skeletons of the original inhabitants have been found. Their name for the place was Cantagantiest. It was south of this hill the settlers first heard the Indians and on the crest of the hill they appeared to the people in the colony. It was there also they came from when Massasoit came across Town brook to make the famous treaty with the whites.

Interested persons have been looking over the hill to ascertain what it offered for a site for the monument to the great Indian chieftain, and there is at least one open lot which commands a fine view of the bay and town.

Record Energy.

Darwin has made many records, its most picturesque recent exploit being the deportation of unpopular officials from the Northern Territory, but hitherto no one has accused the wharf men in this tropical outpost of Australia's north of establishing working records. Recently, however, the management of Vestey's Meat works promised the wharf laborers loading a meat steamer payment for 17 shifts in order to get the vessel away promptly. According to a correspondent of one of the Southern newspapers, the wharf humpers performed the work in 15 shifts and received $101 each—New Australasian.

CALLED HER FAMILY TO HER BEDSIDE

Six Years Ago, Thinking She Might Die, Says Texas Lady, But Now She Is a Well, Strong Woman and Praises Cardui For Her Recovery.

Royce City, Tex.—Mrs. Mary Kilman, of this place, says: "After the birth of my little girl...my side commenced to hurt me. I had to go back to bed. We called the doctor. He treated me...but I got no better. I got worse and worse until the misery was unbearable...I was in bed for three months and suffered such agony that I was just drawn up in a knot... I told my husband if he would get me a bottle of Cardui I would try it... I commenced taking it, however, that evening I called my family about me... for I knew I could not last many days unless I had a change for the better. That was six years ago and I am still here and am a well, strong woman, and I owe my life to Cardui. I had only taken half the bottle when I began to feel better. The misery in my side got less... I continued right on taking the Cardui until I had taken three bottles and I did not need any more for I was well and never felt better in my life... I have never had any trouble from that day to this."

Do you suffer from headache, backache, pains in sides, or other discomforts, each month? Or do you feel weak, nervous and fagged-out? If so, give Cardui, the woman's tonic, a trial
